IMPERIAL QUARTO. INGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION. An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong.

For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given, the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typograph displays the success of an attempt to make th Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast scope of the work, the following facts are submitted for consideration :--Chalmers' Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various applications and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of these examples this work contains more than five times as many as any other Dictionary hitherto pub-

For practical purposes the arrangement of HIE American Barque. the work is so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully with which [2] very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted To parties resident in England and interested in China it cannot but be invaluable occasion. | THE 3/3 L. The demolition of the Tuileries, which will soon be an accomplished fact, and the parrow escape of Hampton Court from destruction, warn the builders of sumptuous palaces of the fate which so often awaits their architectural triumphs long before the ravages of time or the assaults of a military enemy have done the work of destruction. whether the occupant thereof be a king or emperor, an owner of broad acres or a success. ful speculator. The survivals of Kensington House and Hampton Court are no doubt exceptional; but there are in many places dences which have been degraded from the use destined for them by their founder, and employed as hospitals, asylums, or public institutions of some sorter other. The Royal palaces of France and several other countries have shared a similar fate; and their humbled fortunes compare rather strikingly with the growth on all sides of such buildings as Palaces of Justice, Crystal Palaces, and other gigantic structures designed for practical use or public entertainment.

HOW A RABBIT FOOLED A

An Oscar Wilde young man who lives on the North Side and smokes eigarettes heard his adored express a wish for a rabbit. Wandering at dusk past a residence surrounded by a spacious lawn, and pondering upon the possibilities of raising lucre enough to purchase a long-eared pet for the damsel his attention was attracted by a white object on the lawn. Closer examination showed it to be a rabbit. In the shadow of some shrubs the little animal sat on its haunches, with ears erect. He chuckled to himself as This age is not one for private palaces, he saw how he could save the money he was going to borrow to buy a rabbit with, and, yet get the rabbit. He climbed the fence, undismayed by the four-inch gash in his wallpaper trousers, and stole softly upon the unsuspecting rabbit. The rabbit never stirred. Taking off his elegant tile that he had stood Dunlap off for that morning, he pounced upon the poor thing and jammed. the Pat down over it, and the two white Activ ears struck up through the new tile-top. It was an iron rabbit. - Chicago Herald.
